

Join the Fairfax County Police Department, the Fairfax Countywide Initiative to Reduce Underage Drinking and Northern Virginia Community College (NVCC) for a movie screening and panel discussion on the dangers of underage binge and high-risk drinking on our teenagers. The documentary “Haze,” is graphic in its depiction of the effects of underage alcohol use and high-risk drinking particularly on college campuses. It’s a must-see for all parents and their college-bound teens, as well as anyone else concerned about underage drinking. A panel of Fairfax County experts from law enforcement, the medical community, NVCC, George Mason University, as well as a parent of a college student who died in a car crash following a college drinking party will be on hand to answer questions and share first-hand knowledge of the issues.

Learn how you and your teen can best prepare to handle difficult issues they may face here at home as well as on their college campuses next fall.
